Rob,

Things are crazy for me. If you could draft a message regarding the CFAC, that would be greatly appreciated.

Thanks!

FYI – The fall rules update is expected September 17th. As a reminder, CFAC is not expected to be finalized during this rule update, which might raise questions from local media and residents. Cynthia, are things calming down for you at all? I can help with crafting a simple NPL message if you'd like.

The NPL rules, originally projected for publication on September 10, will be delayed one week due to a number of minor factors. This extra week will enable us to finish up QA and final doc records on several sites, finalize the response to comments for the final rule, obtain OMB concurrence and get sign-off from several managers and key contributors to the rulemaking process who will be out of the office in the next week or two (including myself).

The new Federal Register publication date is expected to be September 17 and the issuance of the press release and web update with the new site information should happen on September 15.

A big thank you to the regions who responded so quickly to OMB's site-specific questions.

Please let me know if you have any questions.
